FOREWORD

As of April 1, 1991, the Alberta Family and Social Services Library has taken over responsibility for the Alberta Social Resources Inventory (ASRI) database and directories.

Alberta Social Resources Inventory is a computerized system providing a coordinated approach to the collection and dissemination of printed information on human services on a province-wide basis in Alberta.

This directory is designed as a helpful guide to the social service organizations in northwestern Alberta. Community professionals, counsellors, physicians, librarians, nurses, clergy, social planners, teachers, and many others should find this a handy reference to be used frequently.

New information on services is added to the Inventory's system on a continual basis. The information in this directory has been collected recently through a mail and telephone survey of the organizations listed.

Inevitably, there will be omissions. Please help us make the directory more useful by identifying any errors or omissions on the convenient Feedback form at the end of the directory. Ideas regarding format are also welcome. The inclusion of any organization in this directory does not necessarily constitute endorsements of the purpose, method or quality of its work.

Library Administrator

ARRANGEMENT OF DIRECTORY

The format of the Social Resources Inventory publications has been greatly revised to provide users with an easier-to-use reference to programs and services through the addition of cross-references and a system of entry numbers.

The information in this directory is divided into three sections:

1. AGENCY PROFILES: The descriptions of agencies appear alphabetically by geographical area. In most cases, the entry gives the formal name of the organization, address, telephone number(s), the person(s) in charge, hours, area served, purpose and services provided. It may also indicate the sponsoring organization, mailing address, fees, clientele served, access to service, sources of referral, documents required, branch information, and itinerant services. The date that the information was updated appears on the last line of each organization's description. By checking this date, the currency of information can be verified. The description reflects what each organization has submitted, with some editing for the sake of consistency. Common-names of agencies appear with appropriate SEE references to the entry numbers and formal names of the agencies.

2. AGENCY INDEX: The names of organizations appear alphabetically by geographical area along with entry numbers, and phone numbers.

3. SUBJECT INDEX: The subjects are listed alphabetically. SEE references direct the user to the major category in the index where the item will appear as a subcategory along with a complete list of agencies providing the service, their locations and entry numbers. As there is frequently a relationship with other types of services, SEE ALSO references are listed to direct the user to these services.

For information on services in other regions, see the section entitled OTHER INFORMATION AND REFERRAL SOURCES IN ALBERTA, following the SUBJECT INDEX.
